As we are bringing forward a motion that the Secretary of State withhold his sanction to the increase of salaries recently recommended, it is only consistent that we should oppose this particular vote. He also asserts and his assertion is apparently confirmed from home that the purpose for which this um of £85 is voted will be a very conaiderable benefit to the shipping of the Colony, and unless his reputation for accontine attainments has been wrongly ourned-a thing which we cannot conceive for a moment—he, is certainly qualified to speak on the subject.
